

Important Information about the Trading Practices of Independent Investment Managers and Envestnet in Certain Truist Advisory Services Wrap Fee Programs.

This document provides important trade-related information regarding Truist Advisory Services ("TAS") AMC Premier, Envestnet Sentry, AMC Pinnacle Unified Managed Account (UMA), AMC Fund Select Tactical*, and AMC Advantage wrap fee programs. The investment programs listed above each allow Clients to select Envestnet Asset Management (Envestnet), an SEC Registered Investment Adviser, (Envestnet) and other independent investment managers (Independent Investment Managers). Current and prospective Clients should understand the trading practices employed by Independent Investment Managers utilized in these programs.

Custody and Trade Execution

Clients maintain an underlying brokerage account with TAS's affiliated introducing broker-dealer Truist Investment Services (TIS). TIS clears trades through National Financial Services (NFS), who also serves as the custodian on most TIS accounts. Envestnet provides administrative services to certain TAS' advisory programs which includes accessing Envestnet's platform system and submission of trade details to NFS. TAS's Program Fee includes the execution and clearing costs associated with trades executed by TIS or NFS. In general, Envestnet routes trades to the custodian of record, as noted above, typically NFS, but can execute trades away from NFS, subject to best execution obligations.

Envestnet and other Independent Investment Managers are required to take all reasonable steps to obtain the best execution price on Client trades and execute securities transactions in a manner where costs and/or proceeds are most favorable to the Client under the circumstances. To achieve best execution on trades, Envestnet and other Independent Investment Managers will consider several factors when selecting an executing broker, such as execution capabilities, responsiveness and efficiency of trade executions.

Investment Managers may also decide to aggregate orders for multiple accounts into one "block" for execution purposes. Aggregating orders generally seeks to obtain a more advantageous price. The benefit, if any, obtained as a result of such aggregation generally is allocated pro-rata among the accounts who participated in the aggregated transaction.

Best Execution and Trading Away (Step Out)

To obtain best execution, Envestnet and other Independent Investment Managers may execute trades away from TIS or NFS. Trading Away (step out) occurs when transactions are executed through firms other than TIS or NFS. When this happens, Clients can incur additional commissions and/or execution costs that are in addition to the Program Fee paid by the Client. As a result, the net purchase or sale price reflected on trade confirmations and brokerage statements for these trades reflect brokerage commissions or dealer markups or markdowns charged by the executing broker dealer and are not separately itemized on Client statements.

Investment Managers may select broker dealers that provide research or other transaction-related services and may cause the Client to pay such broker dealers commissions or other transaction-related fees in excess of those that other brokers dealers may have charged. Clients should understand that TAS does not evaluate whether Envestnet or other Independent Investment Managers are satisfying their best execution obligations to Clients when trading away, because the terms of the program have delegated trading authority to Envestnet and other Independent Investment Managers, and TAS is not a party to such transactions and cannot negotiate the price or transaction related charge(s) with the executing broker dealer.

Historically Managers of fixed income portfolios have engaged in more trading away and step-out trades than equity managers. As a result, Clients of these fixed income managers will pay more for execution to the extent their managers trade away, and the total net price paid for fixed income investments could exceed the net price TIS or NFS might have obtained, acting as agent.

Clients should read the disclosures related to the TAS program in which they enroll and Form ADV of their chosen Envestnet or other Independent Investment Manager. Clients should pay particular attention to Investment Managers' disclosures relating to trading and brokerage practices, as Clients should understand the trading methods of Envestnet and other Independent Investment Managers.

The table below, using trade data from January 1, 2023, through December 31, 2023, reflects the frequency of step out trades placed by Envestnet and other Independent Investment Managers.

*AMC Fund Select Tactical statistics are included in the Envestnet Overlay Trading line items.

*Nuveen - Estimated Step Out costs for Municipal Bond SMAs.

Where Nuveen Asset Management trades away, clients generally incur implicit transaction costs and fees in addition to the wrap fee. These fees are generally in the form of mark-ups and mark-downs, or spreads, earned by the relevant securities dealer (not Nuveen Asset Management or a Nuveen affiliate).

For secondary market trades, dealer trading mark-ups typically range from 1 to 10 basis points (a few cents to several dollars) per bond depending on several factors, including position size, market strength or weakness and holding period among others. For primary market (new issue) trades, there are no additional trading costs.
